The acronym "Vinex" refers to a supplement of the Dutch government's Fourth Report on Spatial Planning, which was published in the early 1990s and determined the policy direction for housing development in the Netherlands. The definitive reference work on the fifty-two Vinex districts, Vinex Atlas, designed by Studio Joost Grootens, is based on aerial views, plans, site data, and recent on-site photographs. Page 91 documents two districts in Apeldoorn, currently the Netherlands' twelfth-largest city.
